

February 12, 2011

Good Showing for City University Social Responsibility Day at Ma Wan Park

The City University of Hong Kong held a Social Responsibility Day at Ma Wan Park for nearly 200 people, including university council chairman Leung Chun-ying, president Way Kuo, council members, staff, students and alumni, and children invited by a social welfare organization. The day started at Noah's Ark and then moved on to the Nature Garden Windmill Station and Hilltop Lookout where participants removed parasitic plants and weeds. The civic-minded event follows the Ma Wan Park goals of promoting harmony and love for life, family and the Earth.

Park Manager Edmond Wong explaining weed removal (left)

Participants collect the necessary tools (right)

Clearing parasitic plants at the Windmill Station (left)

Park Manager Edmond Wong shows Leung Chun-ying how to use the long trimmer (right)

Participants and the plants removed (left)

Park staff demonstrate weeding techniques at the Hilltop Lookout (right)

Working to preserve the environment (left)

A job well done (right)